TIRANA CITY PROFILE

Tirana is the capital and largest city of Albania. It is located in the center of the country, enclosed by mountains and hills with Dajti rising to the east and a slight valley to the northwest overlooking the Adriatic Sea in the distance.

Tirana is the biggest industrial, commercial, and administrative center, making the city the heart of the economy of Albania and the most industrialized and economically fastest growing region in Albania.

The city has a large service sector, which makes a very significant contribution to the city's economy and the employment it provides. The sector has developed significantly since the change of regimes in Albania. Tirana is also the financial center of the country and the financial industry is a major component of the city. The main industrial area of Tirana is situated in the western part of the region (commune of Kashar and municipality of Vora).

The telecommunication, ICT, and BPO industry represents another major and growing contributor to the city's economy. Rapid developments have taken place throughout the last decades, also due to the new national policy of reform and opening up sped up the industry's development.

The tourism industry of the city has expanded in recent years to become a vital component of the economy. The increasing number of international arrivals at the Tirana International Airport and Port of Durrës from across Europe, Australia, and Asia has rapidly grown the number of foreign visitors in the city.

The telecommunication, ICT, and BPO industries represent another major and growing contributor to the city's economy.
